OPENING REFLECTIONS

Dr. Ulrike Al-Khamis, Director & CEO

2023 was a year of exciting new horizons, filled with joy, renewed energy, and dynamic focus on the future as we welcomed all of you back to the Museum for a host of impactful initiatives.

Literally and metaphorically at the heart of our colourful year, our Rumi exhibition not only inspired tens of thousands, but also became our second-most popular exhibition ever – so popular, in fact, that we are currently working on developing a touring version.

Our Museum festivals once again saw our communities come together, with Rhythms of Canada attracting 12,000 visitors and Nuit Blanche bringing 5,000 people to the Museum and the Aga Khan Park. Meanwhile, our ninth Duende Flamenco Festival in November completely sold out, attracting an audience of nearly 1,400. We succeeded in engaging over 600 students, across Toronto's two largest school boards, through educational outreach programs focused on the intercultural theme of flamenco and some of its spectacular artists.

Throughout the year, our Education team engaged with thousands of students on-site, off-site, and online, with programming during Islamic Heritage Month in October alone attracting nearly 9,000 participants – a 260 percent increase over 2022!

Looking ahead, our plans are more ambitious than ever. Our goal will be to position the Aga Khan Museum – locally and globally – as the go-to museum and educational resource for intercultural learning around the arts of Muslim cultures, with the aim to foster dialogue, empathy, and understanding between Muslims and non-Muslims and affect positive social change. In terms of our Public Programs, we aspire to become a fully accessible, inclusive, and innovative creative platform and incubator. We will become a broadcasting voice at the heart of the community, empowering thought-provoking, transformative intercultural connections and experiences through exhibitions, public programming, performances, and festivals.

Our global footprint, meanwhile, will grow through our digital #MuseumWithoutWalls and our accessible subscription model that will harness digital technology to provide high-quality education and enjoyment online by sharing the best of our Collections, art exhibitions, programs, and performances with individuals and communities globally.

The Museum looks to the future with renewed determination and positivity. There is much to do and contribute to this complex world, and with our vision, mandate, awesome Museum team, and you, we will make it happen!

U. Al-Khamis

OPENING REFLECTIONS

Nadia Humayun, Director, Development

As I reflect on 2023, I am filled with immense gratitude for the Museum's incredible donor community. Philanthropic support touches every single part of the Museum.

From dynamic performances in the Nanji Family Foundation Auditorium, to impactful digital and educational programming that allows students to explore their identities through the arts, to thought-provoking exhibitions that share stories asking us to look at the world in new ways, philanthropy underpins our impact. This support is vital in helping the Museum contribute to more inclusive and peaceful societies through the arts of the Muslim world.

With great thanks to the generosity of our donors, 2023 was the Museum's most successful fundraising year to date. A special thank you to everyone who supported the 2023 Lapis Ball: In Ecstatic Motion, which raised over $1 million in support of the Museum.

As the Museum looks ahead to its milestone tenth anniversary year, starting in September 2024, I want to acknowledge the many thousands of people who have contributed to the success of the last decade.

With so much to look forward to on the horizon, we can't wait to continue partnering with our donors and supporters to advance the mission and vision of the Museum in new and impactful ways. Thank you for your passion for the Museum and for being part of our journey as we celebrate ten years and look at all that is to come in the years ahead.

TRANSFORMATIONAL GIVING

In 2023, the Museum was honoured to receive a transformational multimillion-dollar donation from the Gulshan & Pyarali Gulamali Nanji Family Foundation that will expand the Museum's reach and impact millions of people around the globe, deepening their understanding of Muslim cultures and their connection with the world. The generous donation is the largest granted by the Nanji Family Foundation to an arts organization.

“Our support for the Aga Khan Museum stems from our passion and appreciation for the arts and the ways in which they unify us.

The Museum has established its place within the shared fabric of Canadian society, encouraging mutual understanding and appreciation of one another. We hope this contribution will encourage others to support their community, country, and the world.”

– Azim Nanji on behalf of the Gulshan & Pyarali G. Nanji Family Foundation

In recognition of their long-standing generosity and support, the Museum's Auditorium has been renamed the Nanji Family Foundation Auditorium.

EXHIBITION AND INSTALLATION HIGHLIGHTS

In 2023, audiences experienced powerful storytelling through original exhibitions, special installations, and themed installations in the Museum and the Aga Khan Park, complemented by digital access available globally through immersive 3D exhibition tours.

The Museum Collections Gallery featured two special themed installations – Water and Inside/Outside – highlighting objects around these themes designed to help visitors look at the stories contained in the Museum’s Collections in new ways.

MAY 13–OCTOBER 1

RUMI

Curator: Dr. Michael Chagnon

Visitors were invited to journey through the life and timeless legacy of Jalal al-Din Muhammad Balkhi (d. 1273), known as Rumi, on the 750th anniversary of his passing. The exhibition explored his early life in Central Asia, his experiences with displacement and migration, and his transformation into one of the most important mystical poets of the Persian-Islamic tradition.

As part of the exhibition, three new major installation works by leading contemporary artists were commissioned: Distance Between Homes, by Hangama Amiri; The Dream That Must Be Interpreted, by Erdem Taşdelen; and The Elephant in the Dark, by Simin Keramati.

LISTEN.

Special Projects Curator: Marianne Fenton

Visitors were invited to untangle meaning in a new immersive meditative art installation by Matt Donovan and Hallie Siegel emerging from the centre reflecting pool in the Aga Khan Park.

Inspired by a 13th-century poem attributed to Rumi, Listen. picked up where he left off, inviting visitors to open their senses and experience the unknown that lies just beyond their awareness.

“Most galleries and museums strive to be inclusive these days, but intercultural dialogue has been part of the Aga Khan Museum’s core mandate since its inception. Juxtaposed against its historical collection, the Museum’s thoughtfully appointed exhibition spaces combine with an international audience reach to make the Museum one of Toronto’s most exhilarating places for contemporary artists to exhibit. If Toronto wants to be known as a world-class city for the arts, it can rest assured that’s already happening.”

– Matt Donovan and Hallie Siegel

SHEZAD DAWOOD: Night in the Garden of Love

Special Projects Curator: Marianne Fenton

Night in the Garden of Love was created by British artist Shezad Dawood, inspired by African-American Muslim musician, composer, and polymath (Allāmah) Dr. Yusef Lateef (1920–2013). In this multilayered exhibition, the garden serves as the starting point for a creative futuristic and intercultural conversation in which art and music can help transform the individual and the environment.

CULTURED PALLETS

Curator: Bita Pourvash

Presented in the Museum Collections Gallery, Cultured Pallets: Aga Khan Museum, by Canadian-Iranian artist Soheila Esfahani, is comprised of more than 100 shipping pallets. Esfahani transforms these everyday objects, often used as platforms to transport goods and materials, to capture the feeling of in-betweenness – a space where those experiencing migration often find themselves negotiating identities and cultures.

MAÏMOUNA GUERRESI: Sebaätou Rijal & Villes Nouvelles and Ancient Shadows

Inspired by the complex history of Marrakesh and the Seven Saints of Marrakesh, this portrait series, which was on display in the Lower-Level Gallery and the Aga Khan Park, explored how spiritual growth can bring about changes in perspective. The series addresses the breaking down of barriers caused by extreme individualism in today's world and insights into the French colonial architectural style with the traditions, culture, and spirituality of Marrakesh.

PERFORMANCES TO LIFT YOUR SPIRIT

The Aga Khan Museum champions the power of the arts in facilitating cross-cultural understanding and dialogue through the practice of cultural pluralism. In 2023, artists inspired audiences through impactful performances in the Nanji Family Foundation Auditorium and beyond. Highlighted below are just some of the performances presented in 2023.

The Museum's Performing Arts programming is generously supported by the Nanji Family Foundation.

CARMINE: SOMETHING IS AWAKE

Now in its third year, the Intercultural and Creative Music Fellowship is a project aimed at fostering a greater understanding of Muslim heritage in music and film while also helping emerging artists achieve greater professional experience. In the summer of 2023, nine Humber College students worked together to create and record five songs, two films, a zine (self-published booklet), and a series of digital art as part of an album, titled Something is Awake.

“Cross-disciplinary work and initiatives help students seeking to be professionals in their field connect and adapt to sectors in the real world where their work is of great value. These types of initiatives also inform the community of cultural gaps that exist in accessibility, diversity, and representation. I feel I gained a great deal of understanding of how to approach creative problems by considering and applying a diversity of perspectives.”

TD POP-UP PERFORMANCES

This dynamic program of weekly informal performances provides a platform for newcomer and emerging artists to showcase their craft, initiate cross-cultural dialogue, and engage new audiences. Performances happen throughout the year in the Museum's public spaces and galleries. Special performances at signature events like the Museum's Rhythms of Canada festival are also presented.

116 TD Pop-Up Performers, featured in 423 performances.

"As an emerging artist, being part of the Aga Khan Museum's Pop-Up Performances has personally shown me how dynamic and alive art can be. These moments of creativity add a layer of personal connection between artists like me and visitors, enriching the Museum's culture in a truly unique way."

– Shanaya Patel

Pop-up Performances at the Museum are sponsored by TD Bank Group through TD Ready Commitment.

LIFELONG LEARNING AT THE AGA KHAN MUSEUM

Innovative and impactful education programs allow young people to explore diverse cultures as well as their own. Students are empowered to learn about themselves and one another, sharing in the common threads that tie them together and celebrating their differences.

The Museum maintains partnerships across Ontario and works with local service organizations to provide complimentary educational programs and community outreach initiatives to marginalized communities. Partners include local school boards and charities such as the Toronto District School Board, Peel District School Board, and Ronald McDonald House. Through these partnerships, the Museum engages learners with on-site, off-site, and virtual programming.

In 2023, 16,700 students attended in-person or virtual educational programs hosted by the Museum.

In October, the Museum partnered with the Toronto District School Board Islamic Heritage Month, providing over 7,000 students with on-site and virtual programs and workshops that highlighted and celebrated the rich contributions of Muslim civilizations to world heritage.

The 2023 Aga Khan Museum Summer Camp welcomed 123 campers from around the world – from the United States to Australia and South Africa as well as many newcomers to Canada.

“We would like to express our deepest gratitude to you for being a workshop presenter at the Muslim Youth Leadership Conference. It was Peel’s first conference for Muslim students, and it wouldn’t have been a success without you! Students loved the hands-on nature of both workshops and enjoyed incorporating their creativity and ideas to their work. Students had great things to say about the workshops and how the presenters made them feel welcome and seen. An environment of inclusivity is possible when genuine care and understanding are evident. We thank you for providing that atmosphere for our students!”

– Muslim Youth Leadership Conference Team

Special thanks to Stephen and Cathy Ford for contributing to camp scholarships, ensuring children were able to attend camp through their financial support.

The Museum is thankful for the support of a number of donors who invest in Education as a priority, including the Weston Family Foundation, Wynford Holding, Nazmin and Mohamed Rawji, and Rosemin and Liaquat Chatur.

PODCAST

This Being Human

2023 marked the third season of the Museum's beloved podcast hosted by Abdul-Rehman Malik, reaching 135,000 people across 136 countries since the podcast's inception.

Season 3 highlights included award-winning journalist and producer Noor Tagouri, world-renowned musician Zakir Hussain, and a special live-audience recording of the podcast with Abdul-Rehman's sister, Ausma Malik, the first woman in a hijab to be elected to public office in Canada, and the first Muslim-identifying, hijab-wearing woman on Toronto City Council.
